Who is affected by abuse?

Many people in Surrey live safely, free from abuse and are able to protect themselves from further risk.

However, some people have care and support needs that make it difficult for them to protect themselves from abuse and neglect. In these circumstances, they may need help and support to keep themselves safe. This may include people who are frail, people with physical disabilities, learning disabilities, long term conditions, mental ill health, autistic people and people who misuse alcohol or substances.

Safeguarding adults is about protecting a person's right to live in safety, free from abuse and neglect.

What is abuse?

Abuse can be:

- something that happens once
- something that happens repeatedly
- a deliberate act
- something that was unintentional due to lack of understanding
- a crime.

Abuse can happen anywhere, at any time and be caused by anyone. Abuse is always wrong.

Different kinds of abuse

Abuse can take many forms including:

- Physical abuse - this includes being hit, shaken, kicked, being locked in a room, inappropriate restraint or rough handling.
- Sexual abuse - this includes an adult being made to take part in a sexual activity when they have not given, or are not able to give, their consent.
- Psychological or emotional abuse - this includes being shouted at, ridiculed or bullied, threatened with harm, blamed or controlled by intimidation or fear.
- Financial or material abuse - this includes theft, fraud, financial exploitation including restricting access to or controlling someone's money.
- Neglect and acts of omission - this includes the failure to provide essential care and support needs that results in someone being harmed.
- Discrimination - this includes ill treatment, harassment, threats or insults due a person's age, gender, sexuality, disability, race or religious belief.
- Modern slavery - this includes human trafficking and forced labour.
- Organisational abuse - this is when abuse is caused by an organisation and may include lack of leadership and supervision, insufficient staff or high turnover resulting in poor quality care, failure to manage residents with abusive behaviour.
- Domestic abuse - this includes physical, sexual, psychological and financial abuse occurring between partners or by a family member. It also includes harassment, stalking, gaslighting and coercive and controlling behaviour in a domestic situation.
- Self-neglect - this is an extreme lack of self-care. It is sometimes associated with hoarding and may be a result of other issues such as substance misuse.

How to report abuse to Adult Social Care

If you are concerned that you, or someone you know, may be experiencing abuse or neglect, or are at risk of the same, please report it. A team of professionals will support you to feel safe again and will deal with all matters in the strictest confidence.

Who can report abuse?

Anyone can refer a safeguarding concern. For example, a friend, family member, carer, a professional working with adults with care and support needs, or someone who thinks they have themselves been abused.

If you suspect abuse, reporting it can help bring it to an end. It is everyone's business to look out for others and protect them from abuse.

In an emergency, dial 999 for the Police.

Support services in the community that can help keep you safe

Many people live on their own and do not have family members nearby to help. However, there are many services in the community that can help to keep you safe and feel more confident.

The Surrey Domestic Abuse Helpline provided by Your Sanctuary offers an independent and confidential listening service to anyone affected by domestic abuse. If you, or someone you know, is experiencing domestic abuse you can talk about it in confidence with someone who is trained to provide you with emotional support, information and advice to help you make informed choices.

Contact the helpline:

- Telephone: 01483 776822 (9am to 9pm, seven days a week)
- Textphone (via Relay UK): 18001 01483 776822
